FJC Brotherhood Sponsored Breakfast

Presentation by Daniel Neuburger on His Recently Released Book

THE LAST TO LEAVE – A NOVEL

Sunday, December 27th, 2026 at 9:30 AM in Speen Hall, FJC

After retiring, Dan began researching his family's history in Germany, and what started as a personal journey unexpectedly evolved into his becoming an author and speaker. This November, he will be publishing The Last to Leave, a historical novel inspired by true events. As I uncovered my family's story, I realized it wasn't simply a story about what happened during the Holocaust—it was a story about the choices that came before: how prejudice takes root, the importance of moral courage, and the responsibility each of us has to speak up before hatred becomes normalized. Those lessons became the foundation for both the book and the presentation I've developed for synagogues, Jewish organizations, community groups, and schools. Please see the accompanying author supplied program guide for further details.

Please join us for breakfast on December 27th to hear Dan discuss his new book.

FEATURED PRESENTATION BASED ON THE LAST TO LEAVE

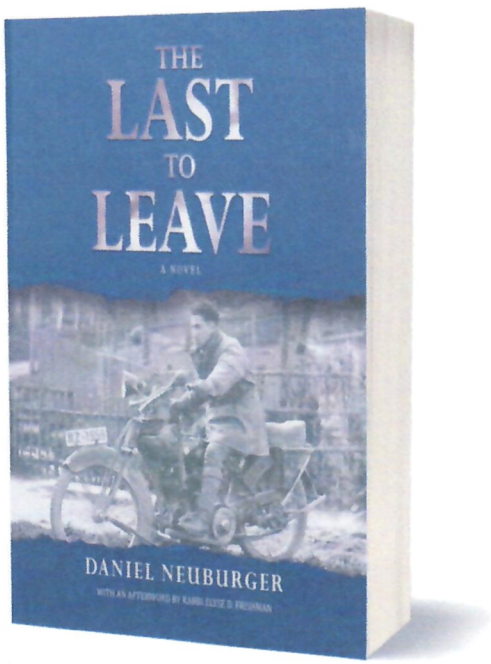
When History Echoes

What My Family's Story Teaches Us About Hatred, Courage, and Our Responsibility Today



Dan Neuburger

Author | Storyteller

THE LAST TO LEAVE – A Novel

Inspired by a true story and grounded in extensive historical research, The Last to Leave tells the story of one ordinary family confronting extraordinary choices during the early years of the Holocaust.

Available November 9, 2026

A presentation that transforms one family's history into a conversation about our shared responsibility today.

Blending historical records, personal artifacts, and the remarkable true story behind The Last to Leave, Dan Neuburger invites audiences into one ordinary family's experience and challenges participants to consider not only what those choices meant then—but what they ask of us today.

AUDIENCES LEAVE WITH

- A deeper understanding of how hatred takes root long before violence begins.
- A personal connection to one family's experience during Nazi persecution.
- A renewed appreciation for the power of ordinary people to influence history through everyday choices.
- Practical ways to use their own voice to strengthen understanding, preserve memory, and confront hatred.

AN ACCIDENTAL AUTHOR

I didn't set out to write a novel.

I simply wanted to better understand my German-Jewish family's experience during the Holocaust. What began as a personal search for my family's past led me through years of archival research across Germany.

Along the way, I realized I wasn't just discovering my family's history—I was uncovering lessons that speak to all of us.

That journey became The Last to Leave – and inspired a mission to use storytelling to help people recognize hatred before history repeats itself.

"I thought I was searching for my family's past.
I discovered a story with lessons that belong to all of us."
